

Eliminate the need for cylinder adapters

With the increased use of cylinders that have side entry valves fitted, the need for side entry regulators has been addressed by Murex with the introduction of the Saffire® 300 Series side entry single and multi stage range.

The design of these regulators removes the need for the use of cylinder adaptors, improving safety, visibility of the gauges and simplicity of assembly. The improved life of hoses and safety devices is gained by the ergonomic design of the outlet valve.

The Murex Saffire® range of side entry welding and cutting regulators continues the Murex brand responsibility to provide users with the most reliable and safe products for use worldwide.

Robust design allows the use of these regulators in the most demanding of industrial environments.
